his organization and the North German Lloyd were beginning a rate war for transatiantic passengers and freight. Mr. Meyer, who has just returned from a German trip, said the two companies would undoubtedly continue their policy of "friendly competition." He had a gloomy view of internal conditions in Germany and thought the favorable circumstances under which German shipping is operating would not long continue.

Voluntary versus Habitual Vacations

Many of us are prone to think of a vacation as a necessary event occurring periodically like the 4th of July and Christmas. In fact we have heard reiterated so many times the necessity for taking a vacation that it has become with us more a matter of habit than a voluntary institution. Yet how many of us have wished ourselves back at our accustomed duties before the vacation was over. Such experiences may rightly be termed vacuous vacations, empty, lacking in interest, taken rather from a feeling of necessity than of real desire

How much better it would be to take a voluntary vacation with the mind and interest occupied without the monotony of scenery and locality which surfeits the senses. A vacation which fills the mind progressively is truly helpful. It broadens our viewpoint, acquaints us with different phases of civilization and makes our own lives more colorful for the experience. Our energy during the days to come will be more forceful—our vision more clear
